

Mr. Li Hongzhi Personally Teaches Falun Gong; “Truth, Compassion, Tolerance” Spreads All Over the World

Falun Gong’s founder, Mr. Li Hongzhi, traveled tirelessly across China and around the world teaching the principles of the universe, Truth, Compassion, and Tolerance. Invited by Qigong organizations from each area in China, during the two-year period from May 1992 to the end of 1994, Mr. Li traveled to almost all major Chinese cities to teach the practice, and gave 53 Falun Gong seminars during that time. Tens of thousands of people attended the seminars. In the later part of that period, there were four to five thousand people attending each seminar. Its scale was unprecedented at that time. Since 1995, Mr. Li has taught in Australia, Switzerland, Canada, the United States, and Singapore, among other countries. Wherever he has gone, many people and many countries have benefited from his teachings, winning Falun Gong international acclaim and much respect. Due to his outstanding contribution to humanity, Mr. Li Hongzhi was nominated for the 2001 Nobel Peace Prize by nearly 600 professors and government officials from 21 countries. Mr. Li was also nominated by 28 European Parliament members for the European Parliament’s Sakharov Prize in 2001 for Freedom of Thought.

Lecture in Wuhan, China
(March 1993)

Second Lecture in Guangzhou, China
(October 1993)

Lecture in Dalian, China
(July 1994)

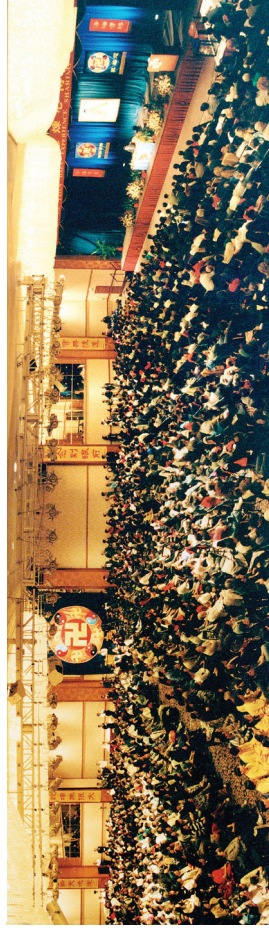

Lecture in Toronto, Canada
(May 1999)

European Experience Sharing Conference
in Paris, France
(July 1999)

Lecture in San Francisco
(October 2000)

1999 New York Conference in the United States

Lecture in the UN General Assembly Hall in Geneva, Switzerland (September 1998)