

Lawsuits Filed Against Former Chinese President Jiang Zemin for Genocide and Crimes Against Humanity

In October 2002, individual plaintiffs (including an Australian citizen) jointly submitted a legal case to the U.S. District Court, the United Nations Committee Against Torture, the United Nations Human Rights Committee, and the International Criminal Court against Jiang Zemin and the Falun Gong Control Office (Office 6/10). Plaintiffs are Falun Gong practitioners who were subjected to persecution, torture, illegal imprisonment, and major human rights abuses, based on their belief in the spiritual practice of Falun Gong.

The following is a partial list of charges against Jiang Zemin:

- Conducting a state-authorised systematic campaign of murder, torture, rape and psychiatric abuse against Falun Gong, under his orders to “Destroy their reputation, bankrupt them financially and annihilate them physically.”
- Using the State propaganda apparatus to brainwash the world’s largest nation in order to incite hatred against innocent people, fabricating a gruesome “self immolation” and harmful propaganda to desecrate the good name of tens of millions and to justify his irrational policy.
- Establishing the notorious “610 Office”, an agency of terror designed for the sole purpose of eliminating Falun Gong, and which is above the Constitution and all levels of the Party.
- Violating nearly every item in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, and the Convention Against Torture.

What is Falun Gong?

Falun Gong (Falun Dafa) is an ancient Chinese spiritual discipline that includes exercise and meditation. At the heart of the practice are three principles:

Truthfulness, Compassion, and Forbearance.

These suits are not against the government of China, nor do they target any legitimate acts of any of China’s officers. The plaintiffs are suing Jiang Zemin for exploiting his official position to commit atrocious violations of human rights.
